

Dear :

We want to help you become the most prepared medical school applicant and successful student possible. We have created The University of Vermont College of Medicine Summer Medical School Prep Program to help you prepare for the revised MCAT, build clinical experience with formal shadowing and medical simulation center activities, and practice essential skills for medical school admissions interviews through mock multiple mini interviews (MMIs).

The program is being offered by accomplished College of Medicine Teaching Academy faculty, and runs June 20th - July 15th. But you won't just learn from faculty. You'll also be assigned to a current medical student, who will serve as your personal mentor and can provide you with the "inside scoop" on applying to and succeeding in medical school.

Please join me for an information session at UVM from 4-5pm on March 16, 2016 in the Davis Center Chittenden Bank Room 413.

Applying what you learn in this carefully designed program can help you stand out as an applicant and succeed as a medical student. Students who successfully complete the program will receive a detailed, personalized assessment document that has great value as a developmental tool and as a highlight within your educational portfolio.

This program is for pre-med students who are getting ready to take the MCAT and apply to medical school. We expect that most participants will have completed their first three years of undergraduate pre-med coursework before starting the program this summer. Recent graduates are welcome to participate, as long as you have completed the standard pre-med course requirements.

If this program sounds like a good fit for you, I encourage you to register immediately, because seats are limited. Learn more and register online at learn.uvm.edu/summermed.

I hope to see you at 4pm for the information session on March 16, 2016 in UVM's Davis Center Chittenden Bank Room 413.

Sincerely,

Paula Tracy, PhD
